The target (see sketch maps) has had at least four major periods or eras of utilization over the years: prehistoric, colonial, early 20th century, & modern. Its past (& legitimate modern) use was associated w/ fishing or hunting (i.e. whaling). There are numerous rusted and abandoned metal objects as well as collapsed structures; a dilapidated settlement. There are piles of refuse & discarded objects. There is some sort of iron cover or mechanism w/ a series of braces & cross members - maybe rollers. There is a pile of large metallic bucket-like objects. There are pockets of modern or recent evidence of visits by fishers, or hunting parties. Used as a stop-over by marine life fisheries or whalers. It was also once used by a military organization for maneuvers or as an observation post. There is a turned over metal "wagon" or transport vehicle lying on its side. Overall appearance of abandonment & neglect. There is a small, but maintained, hard packed runway. It is used for stop-overs and this place has the feel of heavy duty narco involvement. A significant hub of trafficking activity.

Plans are in place to establish a series of these "stop overs". Smaller craft (boats; planes) able to "lay low" for periods of time. Overall sense that current activity is utilizing either previous in-place military assets i.e. bunkers, look-outs, etc or previous/ current military personnel.

There is a sense of continued preparation, however utilization is already in place. This facility is used as a ~~base~~ tranship point for smuggling, activities. Seen as a "proto type" for operation. Concept of frequent transfers of small amounts i.e. twin engine quantities vs. freight amounts.

Twin engine aircraft come to island. Link up with small boats. Cargo transferred from planes to boats, but this doesn't make sense. Boats are able to loiter around area; aircraft are in & out quickly. Aircraft arrive in pairs; ~~as~~ arrive back-to-back.

Small camp hidden w/i tree line near end of runway. Used by individuals functioning as "spotters", "caretakers" or "watchers". Bunkers & hangars present. Fuel brought to island via "Shrimpers". There are wooden rails in which objects are rolled along them. There are also panels within structures.

Operation 2) Ritan investigation of this island.

Concept of "façades" in place: maintaining appearance of apparent inconsistent or occasional use by "locals".

Some structures are partially buried into dunes / terrain. One is large enough for a small plane to be stored (about $\frac{1}{2}$ of a plane). Perceive cargo nets or some other "cover" covering part of craft that extends out of the structure. (see diagram pg 4.)

Operation has been utilizing older, non storm structures as well. Island "feels" private but comes under jurisdiction of a nearby nearby country. Some personnel have military connections; either past or current with nearby country. One individual has an historical connection with the island; has been there before in a job related capacity.

Phonetics: Quince, CARLOS, Juan, De Vaca (enterprises).

De Vaca feels like a family owned/run company.

Full moon is important to activity of transfer of cargo.

Again, plans are to make this a major link in network.

Use of "hi-tech" equipment.

Concept of a "set-up" team in place waiting for arrivals.

His "tan" leaves, then comes back. There are fairly constant "check-ups" on island.
